EUROBOIS 2024: 100 days before the doors open, the show's momentum is building!

The Eurobois exhibition will take place between 6 and 9 February 2024 at Eurexpo Lyon.

@AlexandreMoulard

With over 489 exhibitors and brands already registered, the next edition of the leading timber trade show in France is promising to be a good vintage! Over a third of the companies already committed are international (from no fewer than 15 countries) and a quarter are exhibiting for the first time, bringing a breath of fresh air to this new edition!

Eurobois covers a wide range of fields associated with wood, from the processing of the material to tools via robotics, treatments and finishes, as well as interior design. As a meeting place for all these different sectors, the show plays an essential role at every stage of working with wood. The event is also a real catalyst for innovation, highlighting the latest new ideas with a programme rich in activities and events offering training, information, discussion and discoveries of all the most recent market news.

Focused as ever on the key issues facing the industry, the 2024 edition will highlight four major themes: employment and training, primary processing, industry 4.0 and interior design. These strategic areas all represent opportunities to stimulate innovation, encourage synergies between the sector's stakeholders and consolidate timber's leadership as the material of the future.

“Only 100 days left before the doors open at Eurobois! A chance for us to share the momentum propelling our exhibition... In line with the dynamism of the sector as a whole.

I have to say I am proud of the GreenTech+ teams, who are working hard every day to offer an inspiring, immersive event with in-person, life-sized demonstrations. These include the European Young Carpenters Championship organised by Compagnons du Devoir, the Cohome interior design laboratory set up by Équipementiers de l'Ameublement Français, and an exclusive workshop on timber-framed houses. And of course, it's part of our DNA to ensure that no stone is left unturned (happy hours, cocktail receptions, business meeting zone, etc.) to encourage a friendly atmosphere and simple, informal meetings throughout the four days of a show designed on a human scale. We can't wait to welcome you!”

– Florence Rousson Mompou, director of the GreenTech+ division

A rich programme of activities and events

The many events and highlights taking place over the four days of the new edition include:

- Eurobois Campus, a place for meetings and discussions entirely dedicated to jobs and courses in the timber sector for students and professionals seeking employment and training.
- The timber frame panel production workshop, explaining in real time all the stages of production in a workshop making panels for timber frame houses.
- The Eurobois Trophies: A real platform for innovation, the Eurobois Awards are reinventing themselves in 2024 to promote even more new ideas and technological developments and shine a spotlight on the timber sector!

New for 2024!

The final of the European Young Carpenters Championship

In 2024, Eurobois is welcoming the European Young Carpenters Championship! During the three-day competition, young carpenters from all over Europe build sophisticated carpentry models and demonstrate the professional use of timber as a construction material. Four teams have already qualified!

The Wood Arena: a space dedicated to conference sessions, panel discussions and interviews on all the sector's topical themes

Organised by Eurobois and Editions des Halles, with support from France Bois Forêt and in partnership with Wood Surfer and Atelier Bois, the Wood Arena will offer conference sessions, panel discussions and interviews on key industry subjects together with light-hearted moments throughout the four days of the event.

Details of the Eurobois 2024 programme to come.

Visitor registrations open on the Eurobois website on Monday 6 November.

ABOUT THE ORGANISER

GL events Exhibitions Opérations

With 200 events organised worldwide for professionals and the general public, GL events Exhibitions Opérations has unequalled expertise in organising exhibitions and trade shows – a business that must stay abreast of increasingly specialised marketing, communication and organisational techniques while retaining close ties with market players.
